CASE STUDY—Designated Person for Harbour Authority

Customer problem/requirement

The Port Marine Safety Code requires that each Harbour Authority appoint someone as an independent "designated person" with direct access to the board. The designated person's main responsibility is to determine, through assessment and audit, the effectiveness of the marine safety management system in ensuring compliance with the code. We rely on our expertise to provide this service to the very highest standards. We are independent yet work very much as part of the team that is central to effective harbour management.

Benefits to customer

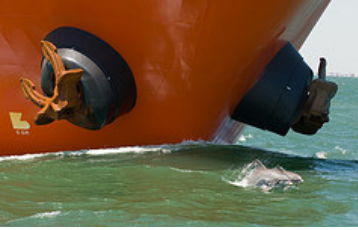

We are truly independent and can provide those accountable for the safe operation of the harbour (often the harbour board) an unbiased view of how things are against the requirements of the code. We work with the harbour master and his staff to ensure the safety management system is a worthwhile management tool and we provide comfort to those accountable that they are discharging their statutory functions in accordance with the law and are meeting the requirements of the code in a pragmatic and cost effective manner.

Special Skills brought by regs4ships

We have extensive knowledge and experience of harbour authorities and we are team members and problem solvers by nature.

Deadline Performance

We have expert mariners who have all served in senior positions at sea available to fulfil the role and responsibilities of the DPA around the clock. Our experience and knowledge in problem solving and decision making regarding technical and operational problems are second to none.

What our customers thought

"Harbour Authorities are diverse by nature and the assistance we can provide will recognise that diversity. We are independent, yet we strive to work with those seeking our assistance to provide pragmatic solutions. We are available on a 'pick and put down' basis or on longer term packages tailored to our customer's needs"

Mark Capon, Managing Director, regs4ships Ltd

We have been the designated person for Harbour Authorities since 2001. Our customers appreciate our independence and because of this often task us with projects outside of our role as designated person. All our customers are very satisfied with our performance.
